

8 fun facts about seahorses

1. A roving eye?

No, two! Seahorses can see in two directions at the same time — useful for a small, slow-moving fish on the lookout for prey, or predators.

2. Seahorses make noise!

During feeding and courtship, seahorses make noises similar to the sound of smacking your lips. It's loud enough to be heard under water.

4. Seahorse courting behavior involves a “dance” that can go on for hours.

5. Seahorses propel themselves using a small fin on their back that flutters up to 35 times a second.

7. Seahorses can change color!

This helps them blend in with their background for camouflage.

3. Seahorses do not have teeth

Their slurping, straw-like mouths suck in all the tiny animals they need for food

6. Male seahorses get pregnant, not the females!

Males have a special brood pouch in which females deposit eggs for the males to fertilize. The fertilized eggs develop there for a few weeks until the seahorse father gives “birth” to many baby seahorses.

8. Most wild seahorses are monogamous, remaining faithful to a single partner. The pair bonds of these seahorse lovebirds are reinforced by daily greetings.
